"Home for retired Napoleans"

Dear Josephine,
Mear, moan, groan, groan, ... bubble bubble ... my equilibrium has been disturbed by opticians and jurisprudence lectures to name but a couple.
Apparently, the jurisprudence course has been completely ~~revised~~ revised and reaches dizzy heights of headiness; enough to upset a young girl's sense of security, especially as she has lost her stabiliser.
Why can't Feldman start at the beginning & work to the end & put everything in a nice concise form instead of arriving at lectures & openly admitting that he has not prepared it & getting us to do all the thinking - it wouldn't be so bad if I could work out what sort of area he is covering & consult the text books but the books seem a little redundant in the light of the breath taking headiness with which we are confronted.
